ACADEMIC PROJECTS

SYBIL ATTACK DETECTION WITH REDUCED BANDWIDTH OVERHEAD IN URBAN VEHICULAR NETWORKS January 2024 - June 2024

This project introduces Footprint, a novel Sybil attack detection mechanism for urban vehicular networks that preserves vehicle location privacy. It uses vehicle trajectories to identify potential Sybil attacks. When a vehicle approaches a roadside unit (RSU), it requests an authorized message as proof of its presence.

The system features a location-hidden authorized message generation scheme, which ensures RSU signatures are signer-ambiguous and conceals RSU location. Additionally, authorized messages signed by the same RSU within a given time are temporarily linkable, allowing for vehicle identification while maintaining privacy

DIGITAL TOKEN GENERATION AND NOTIFICATION SYSTEM FOR PUBLIC DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM May 2023 - September 2023

Virtual Queuing System for Public Distribution

Developed a Q-Learning-based virtual queuing system for Fair Price Shops to reduce wait times and ensure social distancing. Implemented SMS-based slot allocation, minimizing crowding and enhancing efficiency. The system allows re-slot allocation for missed appointments, improving accessibility and fairness in product distribution.
